Red Men and Daughters of Pocahontas Close Successful Fair-Enrico Lever one May Be Deported.

The Red Men and Daughters of Pocahontas closed a successful three-nights' fair at St. Edward's hall Saturday night. The minstrel show Thurs-day night proved a splendid entertain-er and on Friday night the one-act drama A Pretty Piece of Business was well presented and kept the large au-dience in good humor. There was dancing each evening and on Saturday evening the prizes were awarded. Lynch's orchestra furnished music Thursday and Friday evenings and Wood's orchestra Saturday evening. The attendance was large and there will be quite a sum to add to the treasury after all bills are paid.

On resuming play in the second half, the Taftville team played a one back game which bothered their opponents considerably. Whether they had never seen this kind of play or not, they made a vigorous kick against it, but it was of no use. In this half H. Finlayson displayed some brilliant work in stopping goals and up to within ten minutes of time the Taftville players held their own, but through a misunwell working combination, and before they realized it the game was won by their opponents.

Persistent assertions of a lack of moisture in the southern part of Il-linois, Indiana and Ohio counted some what against the wheat bears. It was said heavy soaking rains were needed and that the benefit of recent showers had been almost wholly counteracted by the sun and winds. Less serious held their own, but through a misun-derstanding New Britain tied the score. The two scores undermined Taftville's nerve and broke up their new crop where deliveries here and elsewhere, notably at Kansas City continued to bring the market un-

In oats much of the business consisted of the selling of May against purchases of July. The market as a whole ranged moderately higher, in sympathy with other grain.

What little selling was done in provisions came from longs. Shorts were kept off by the firmness of cereals and hogs.

One of the day's most favorable fac ors was the statement issued by the Pennsylvania railroad of its intention to purchase new equipment in large quantities. This was accepted as the inauguration of a similar movement by other leading rallway systems. General industrial reports, including a marked increase of production by leading steel mills and announcemen of the passing of the intense pessimism so long prevailing in mercantile lines, contributed in no small measure towards the buoyancy manifested in speculative circles. Further sellings, domestic and foreign, for profits, was without effect, highest prices mostly ruling at the close. Total sales amount-

Elisha Harlow Holmes.

Elisha Harlow Holmes, a prominent resident of South Windham, secretary and treasurer of the Willimantic Machine company, died at his home in South Windham Saturday evening. While in his home Thursday afternoon, Mr. Holmes had a sudden attack of heart fallure, and the services of Drs. F. E. Guild of Windham and R. C. White of this city were required. Mr. Holmes was reported as resting more comfortably Saturday morning but his condition took a turn for the worse, and his end came that evening about 8 o'clock. He was a native of South Windham, born July 13, 1844. His father was Elisha Harlow Holmes, one of the founders of South Windham and a pioneer of the Fitch school of that place. His mother was Lydia Allen.

Mr. Holmes attended private schools in his youth and later the Highland Military academy at Worcester, Mass, His first business venture was the establishment of the Thread Buff company of South Windham, a concern formed for the manufacture of buff wheels. For a number of years he was connected with the Dime Savings bank of Willimantic. In 1889, when the Willimantic Machine company was organized, he became associated with the company, and was a member of the board of directors and the secretary and treasurer of the company at the time of his death.

Mr. Holmes was a member and the senior warden of St. Paul's church in Windham and was a member of the Willimantic Board of Trade. He had served as a member of the school board and as selectman and always showed a great interest in the welfare of the town.

There survive one son, Richard J.
